

Humber
Galleries

As part of the upcoming exhibition, Notes for Tomorrow, we're excited to launch a special iteration of our REACTIVATION Project to explore creation, inspiration and the changed world 2 years into a pandemic.

What is REACTIVATION? This project brings together a group of multi-disciplinary Humber creatives to explore how disciplines can inspire creation in one another while working completely separated.

HOW IT WORKS

This version of REACTIVATION is a bit different than our previous iterations. This time we're starting things off with an open call for artwork to all Humber College students and recent Alumni (within 3 years of graduation); we're asking artists to submit creative works that speak to the prompt "How life feels to me after living through two years of a global pandemic". A selection of these works will be chosen by a panel of Humber staff to be part of our REACTIVATION Virtual Gallery as part of Notes for Tomorrow. From there, each participating artist will be paired with an artwork in the gallery and be tasked with using it as inspiration in the creation of a new, original artwork that will be added to the virtual gallery once this project is completed. In the end, each artist chosen to be part of this project will have two original artworks as part of our virtual gallery!

PROJECT PHASES

Phase 1 – Open Call Applications (open until November 20th, 2022)

- This Open Call is open to all Humber students & recent Alumni & follows the creative brief above
- 15 applicants will be selected from this call to take part in the overall project
- These selected creatives/artworks will make up the first iteration of the virtual gallery

Phase 2 – Reaction/Creation Period (takes place December 5th, 2022 - January 29th, 2023)

- Selected artists will be paired with another selected artwork submitted during the Open Call to create a new, original work in response
